Abstract

There is a multiple languages society in this world. To further classify 2 languages(Bilingual) societies, In 1959, Ferguson proposes Diglossia on top of Bilingualism. With the development of economic globalization and decolonization, the economic and political status of language has also changed. With the change of language status, language ability is also changing. Research was conducted on the language status of societies such as France genus Guadeloupe Island and Egypt. Many previous studies of Diglossia have observed the fact that as language policy progresses, the ability of one language increases and the ability of another language decreases from the perspective of society as a whole. From the results of the study, the language with high status increases the ability, and the language with low status decreases the ability. Therefore, it is hypothesized that 'Under the influence of language policy, changes in language ability are related to the status of language', which is the hypothesis of this study. However, there are also polygrussias with three or more languages in a multiple languages society, and it is necessary to study the linguistic competence of polygrussia in order to further understand the research of multilingual societies. Then, in order to clarify the current state of language ability of Polygrussia, this research will be conducted.
